Neither of the young women would make any effort to-night to communicate with friends or to get bail. They could have been asked to be sent before the night court, but they preferred to pass the night in the station house. For a time after they were taken to the matron's room all they would say was. "He is a bad man." He is a vindicative, bad man. He tried to choke us."

The matron asked them why they had revolvers with them and they answered that as they were living alone they thought it necessary to protect themselves.

NOTED OFFICER DEAD

Rear-Admiral Edward D. Robie Victin of Pacumonia.

An eventral life, rich in incidents and fuil of service to his country, was spent by Admiral Robie, who served in the Engineer Corps. His period of duty covered service in the Civil War and in the Spanish-American War. He found his greatest pleasure, however, in his later years, in recalling the incidents of the trip to Japan which opened that nation to the civilization of the world, and Japan's ultimate development to a world power.

But it was not alone in the expediion to Japan that Admiral Robie disinguished himself. He has other chievements to his credit that go to take up an interesting and remarkble record.

snell and fixed ammunition rooms were also of his designing. He superin-tended the construction of other ves-sels, designing steam steering gears and also the construction of other floating dry docks. In this respect, for an fofficer, in his branch of the service, his career was an exceptional pine.

was nervous and ill at ease. He seemed worried, and grew sullen when questions were asked.

The one subject that Mrs. Murdock would not discuss was her husband. She said shortly that she did not know where he was, and did not care. She

Dr. Few announced that B'N and J. B. Duke had given to the college a piece of land adjoining the campus, valued at $100,000; that J. B. Duke had given funds for the immediate erection of a dormitory the exact counterpart of the east dormitory, now in process of construction, to cost $50,000, and that B. N. Duke gave an additional gift of $10,000 for further campus improvements. He also announced that a movement had been is under the downent fund of the college should be increased $1,000,000, and that a large per cont, of the amount had been subscribed, on the provision that the endowment fund of the college should be increased $1,000,000, and that a large per cont, of the amount had been subscribed, on the provision that the entire amount be raised.

One of the most unique and impressive ceremonics of the commencement exercises is the closing of the college year by the lowering of the fag at sanset by the preducting class. Just as the clock pointed to sunsot hour, and the bell began ringing its announcement of the dying day, the flag of the class of 1911, which was raised in September and has floated over the class yell, and departed.

As the last tap of the bell was sounded the flag was unfastened and given over to the president of the college, to be stored away in the vaults of the college, an everlasting memorial of the class of 1911. After the flag had been handed over to the president the class gathered around the foot of the flagpole, gave their class yell, and departed.

To-night in the new academic building probably the higgest social function of the year took place with the reception given in honor of the graduating class. A receiving line made up of the faculty of the college, the members of the class of 1911, and some of the visiting friends of the college, greeted the guests in the large assembly room, and lasting late into the night, the affair was declared a grand success by all present. Tals reception is the last function of the year.

FOLLOW PAUL REVERE

This was written at the heighth of Mrs. Murdock's love affair with young Harding, and contains a bitter thrust at "that Dago." And it was just about the time she was in correspondence with mysterious strangers in different parts of the country, some of whom are said to have visited Mason's Creek. Even in Norfolk there were others, and Murdock probably knew of this.

Letter Shows Animosity.

Here is another letter that shows the animosity once held by "Joe" Murdock for his wife, who is now accused of murdering Harry Harding. It bears no date, but the paper indicates "t was written a year ago or longer: "God will bring upon you troubles upon troubles for your sinful ways. May He curse you. May He bring you bad luck. You will lose everything you have before long, and when God is through with you, remember my curse, and that my prayers have been answered. This Time Historic Route is Covered in Automobiles.

THREE FOUND DEAD BY SIDE OF TRACK

Probably Stepped in Front of Train and Were Killed-Two

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Roanoke, Va., June 7.—At the offict of the Norfolk and Western Railway to-day facts were given concerning a gruesome find made last night on the tracks of the Norfolk and Western near laeger, W. Va. Five persons were d'acovered lying close together, three of them dead and two injured.

The dead: Jim Payne, a constable: Martha Noel, John Ashworth.

Injured: Chas. Oats, colored: Ed. Jones.

Jones.

The cause of the accident has not been ascertained definitely. It is thought that two trains were moving in the vicinity at the time, one on the east-bound and the other on the west-bound track, and that the four men and woman, becoming confused, stepped from one track to get out of the way of a train and placed themselves directly in front of the train on the other track.

Payne had arrested Martha Noel and Charles Oats, and was taking them to jall. Ashworth and Jones, presumably, were walking with them, possibility of the presumer of the control of the charles of the control of the charles of the charles
